---	--------------------

Undergraduate international students must only prove they have funding for 12 credit hours per semester in order for the University of Utah to issue an I-20. Estimated expenses are calculated on 24 credit hours as minimum enrollment for two semesters, but it is recommended that students enroll in 15 hours a semester in order to graduate in four years.

* Your actual expenses may be higher or lower than this estimate depending on your personal spending habits.

 International students pay non-resident tuition rates at the University of Utah. The estimated reflect the minimum amount required for issuing forms needed for the visa application process. Amounts are subject to change at any time.

 Any person requiring a student visa must provide proof of funding greater than or equal to the annual estimated cost. If a student cannot provide a personal bank statement showing the required amount, the student must also have his or her sponsor submit a signed letter or affidavit of support indicating the sponsor's intent to financially support the student.
